Personally, I'm inclined to keep buying new games, even if I'm working with a free-for-all PS Now promotion. When I'm not playing other titles, I have much more time to finish a game or improve my rank in a competitive multiplayer game. This is the most common and cheapest way for me to gain access to new games and prepare for the PS Now sale. I realize that PS Now discounts are great for the most part, but if you're aiming to buy games, you're probably going to want access to them from the time you buy them. If your local store is closing and you're going to be shopping exclusively online, you'll be out of luck. What you'll likely see as the PS Now plan rolls out next year is the release of games on sale, since that's the way publishers see PS Now as a best-of-both-worlds model. If you're interested in PlayStation Now, make sure to sign up as soon as possible. In addition to the free games for November 2021, you can also take advantage of the PS Now free trial, which comes with a 1-month subscription plus 60 free games. 3 p.m. Big Ten Network, fuboTV (Try for free) --Perhaps every collegiate coach in the state has been singing the praises of Pat Fitzgerald, Northwestern's fired-up, 45-year-old coach, who is currently waiting for a new life elsewhere, so that he can build his own legacy at a place where he can call the shots. 9 p.m. FS1, ESPN+ (Try for free) -- Unlike his 2017 freshman season, when he led Boston College to the first of three straight ACC title games with a bowl win, the senior season of Brady White will be his only chance to impact the playoff picture. That is, of course, if he can regain the form that earned him some big-time praise from college football luminaries. White's one of the better quarterbacks in the nation, but he was a little bit up-and-down in the second half of the 2018 season, and he must minimize some off-field issues if he's going to improve his draft stock.
