If $X_0 = 1$ then $P(X_1=2|X_0=1) = 0.4$ If $X_0=2$ then $P(X_1=1|X_0=2) = 0.4$ If $X_0=3$ then $P(X_1=1|X_0=3) = 0.6$ Since the behavior of the chain is an irreducible set. I am asked to find its transition matrix. I have constructed the transition matrix like this. $A = \begin{pmatrix} 0 & 0 & 0 \\ 0.4 & 0 & 0 \\ 0.6 & 0 & 0 \end{pmatrix}$ I am wrong in doing this because this is not irreducible. A is a column vector so the matrix is A^T . If there is some matrix A' that is similar to A then A'^T will also be a transition matrix of the chain. A: You need to have $P(X_1=3|X_0=1)=1$ instead of $P(X_1=3|X_0=1)=0$ and similarly for the other entries, then you can find the transition matrix. If $X_0=1$, then you can see that $P(X_1=3)=1$. If $X_0=2$, then you can see that $P(X_1=3|X_0=2)=0$: $P(X_1=3|X_0=2)=0$

The iPad's front-facing camera (currently) lacks video recording functionality, but the rear-facing camera can shoot 720p clips and even do some cool video effects. Video will take some experimentation to get the best results from the iPad's camera, but it's worth the effort. What's up with FaceTime? When we mentioned the iPad's video features, we left out the one feature that will probably have the most impact on the original iPad: FaceTime. FaceTime is Apple's answer to Skype. Rather than buying a separate Skype box or plugging your computer into a Skype video phone, Apple has brought all of this functionality into your iPad. FaceTime is integrated into the iPad's camera application. When you're in the video camera app, look for the camera icon in the upper right corner. Click on that icon, and you'll be prompted to start a FaceTime call. You can also start a FaceTime call on the iPhone or iPod touch, using the built-in FaceTime application, and it will let you place the call over Wi-Fi or 3G. It can even be used in conjunction with the new Apple Wireless Display. You can also FaceTime with people on other Apple devices. Log onto FaceTime.com to contact other iOS devices. You'll need a Wi-Fi or 3G connection. We've spent a lot of time talking about the iPad as a camera, but it's also a video recorder. The built-in camera on the iPad is a 2.2-megapixel camera that shoots 640x480 video clips at 30 frames per second. It also includes full manual controls for the exposure, white balance, and color saturation. The video recording capabilities of the iPad are limited, but the quality of the video is no lower than what you'd get with a dedicated camera. If you're looking for video recording functionality, you'll need 79a2804d6b
